

'Tagle or Palma is next cardinal'

By Joseph R. Lip

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The death of one of the nation's most prominent Catholic prelates has opened the door for two potential successors to the see of Philadelphia. Bishop Charles J. Sheehan-Connor, 78, died Sunday after a long illness.

Sheehan-Connor was a close friend and confidant of the late Cardinal John J. O'Connor, who died in 1990. He was a vocal supporter of O'Connor's efforts to reform the clergy and his role in the creation of the National Council of Catholic Bishops.

Though retired, he was considered a strong contender for the see of Philadelphia. He was a vocal supporter of O'Connor's efforts to reform the clergy and his role in the creation of the National Council of Catholic Bishops.

The change in leadership is a significant event for the archdiocese. Sheehan-Connor was a close friend and confidant of the late Cardinal John J. O'Connor, who died in 1990.

Figure 1 is a line graph showing the effect of the concentration of the inhibitor on the rate of polymerization. The y-axis is labeled "Rate of polymerization" and ranges from 0 to 1.0. The x-axis is labeled "Concentration of inhibitor" and ranges from 0 to 1.0. The curve starts at (0, 1.0) and decreases as the concentration of inhibitor increases, approaching 0.5 at a concentration of 1.0.

Figure 1 consists of 16 histograms arranged in a 4x4 grid. The rows correspond to transmission rates of 0.05, 0.1, 0.2, and 0.3. The columns correspond to population sizes of 100, 200, 500, and 1000. Each histogram shows the frequency of the number of contacts (x-axis, 0 to 10) for a given transmission rate and population size. The distributions are right-skewed, with the highest frequency typically at 1 contact. As the population size increases, the peak frequency decreases. As the transmission rate increases, the distribution becomes slightly broader and the peak frequency also decreases.

Wind, solar projects in Subic backed

Subic Bay has been identified as a potential site for wind and solar power projects, according to a report by the Department of Energy (DOE). The report, titled "Subic Bay Wind and Solar Potential Study," was released last week. It found that the bay has a high potential for wind power, with average speeds of 10 to 15 meters per second. It also found that the bay has a high potential for solar power, with an average of 5.5 hours of peak sunlight per day. The DOE is currently in the process of conducting further studies to determine the feasibility of these projects. If the studies are successful, the DOE plans to develop a wind and solar power plant in Subic Bay. This plant would be one of the largest in the Philippines and would provide a significant source of renewable energy for the country.

THE MINING INDUSTRY HAS BEEN A MAJOR CONTRIBUTOR TO THE PHILIPPINE ECONOMY SINCE THE 19TH CENTURY. IT HAS PROVIDED EMPLOYMENT FOR MILLIONS OF FILIPINOS AND GENERATED REVENUE FOR THE GOVERNMENT.

THE PAY BILLIONS IN TAXES, ROYALTIES AND FEES. The mining industry has been a major contributor to the Philippine economy since the 19th century. It has provided employment for millions of Filipinos and generated revenue for the government. The tax bill alone from the mining industry every year has averaged over P1 billion. In 2000 the mining industry's total payments in terms of taxes, royalties, and fees were nearly P14 billion.

Government gets more than just a 2% income tax. The actual fiscal contribution of a mining company is that and the value-added tax and other taxes and fees paid by the individual companies.

For example, a large mining company like the Philippine Mining Corporation (PMC) paid P1.2 billion in taxes and fees in 2000. This includes P1.1 billion in taxes and P100 million in fees. The company also paid P1.2 billion in royalties to the government.

MORE THAN PAYING TAXES, THE SMALL MINING COMPANIES. The small mining companies also contribute to the government's revenue. In 2000, the small mining companies paid P1.2 billion in taxes and fees. This includes P1.1 billion in taxes and P100 million in fees. The companies also paid P1.2 billion in royalties to the government.

THE CIVIL GOVERNMENT'S FAIR SHARE. Government takes its share from the gross proceeds of mineral sales. According to Section 110 of the Philippine Mining Act of 1991, the government is entitled to 20% of the gross proceeds of mineral sales. This is a fair share for the government.

With the current tax and royalty regime, government already takes a substantial portion of a miner's or a metal producer's income before tax.

The government's share is not only in the form of taxes and royalties but also in the form of land use fees and other charges. The government also takes a share in the form of land use fees and other charges.

It is important to note that the government's share is not only in the form of taxes and royalties but also in the form of land use fees and other charges.

NOT ALL AREAS CAN OR SHOULD BE DECLARED AS MINERAL RESERVATIONS. The government should not declare all areas as mineral reservations. This is because not all areas are suitable for mining.

The Revenue General is not, and cannot be, passing the legal issues for declaring the payment to declare mineral reservations. The Revenue General is not, and cannot be, passing the legal issues for declaring the payment to declare mineral reservations.

The mining industry badly in need of reform is to help the Philippines move forward, especially with mineral metals prices worldwide. The mining industry badly in need of reform is to help the Philippines move forward, especially with mineral metals prices worldwide.

Where to start with your brilliant idea?

By Chris C. Smith
and David W. Parnell

IT'S A common mistake to think that a brilliant idea is all you need to start a business. In reality, you need a lot more than just a great idea. You need a business plan, a marketing strategy, a sales strategy, a financial plan, and a lot more. Without these, your brilliant idea is just a dream.

Marketing strategy is the first step in creating a successful business. It's the plan that outlines how you will reach your target market and convert them into customers. Without a marketing strategy, you're just guessing at what will work.

Financial planning is another crucial step. It's the process of determining how much money you need to start and run your business, and how you will generate revenue to cover your expenses. Without a financial plan, you're just guessing at how much money you need.

It's about identifying the opportunities that will arise and the challenges that will be faced. It's about creating a vision of the future and then working to make it a reality.
